Rule the exception

Your end-to-end software partner for a world where exceptions are the rule.

We call it "the 90/10 rule." It's a new world for distribution-centric businesses. Sure, 90% of your supply chain transactions are still relatively predictable.

But success today hinges on your ability to efficiently manage the exception: the one-off order, the special request, the unexpected requirement. That 10% of transactions with the power to make or break your customer relationships.

In this reality, your business can't afford to operate at less than peak performance. Which is why so many companies around the world trust Iptor Supply Chain Systems. Leveraging our connected, intuitive and adaptable solutions and robust and modular technologies, we deliver common sense solutions that help businesses like yours master the predictable, the unexpected and everything in between.

Don't let the exception rule your business.

As we partner with our customers to enable them not only to manage, but also rule the exceptions, we will help them to reduce complexity. This increases efficiency and accuracy, whilst also improving real-time visibility, among other benefits. What has been a burden for our customers can become a route to winning new business and increasing margin.
